

Geomatics

Mapping your future

What is Geomatics?

The study of Geomatics encompasses the field of surveying and mapping, an exciting profession that utilizes cutting edge technology to measure the features of the earth in order to establish the location of property lines, ensure the accuracy of construction projects, and produce updated maps used by engineers, architects, lawyers and countless other professionals.

Graduate Facts:

- Starting salaries begin at $45,000 - $55,000 a year
- 65% advance to managing a department in surveying and mapping
- 50% become business owners within 5 years

Rewards for Students

Scholarships: We'd like to begin rewarding you now by offering scholarships to diligent students enrolled in a Geomatics program.

Diversity: Geomatics is a diverse field comprised of several areas of learning that includes: law, computer science, math, environmental studies, and business. Whether you're suited for working outdoors, or inside an office, surveying and mapping allows you to specialize in the areas that interest you.

Success: The profession needs you now! With such a growing demand for surveyors, you can expect lucrative career opportunities for years to come. A Geomatics degree will put you on the path to great success!

Florida Surveying and Mapping Society

www.fsms.org/careers.asp

email: director@fsms.org

call: 800.237.4384

Why Surveying?

- Competitive Salary
- Growing Profession
- Rewarding Career Path